

RESILIENCE CAPITAL PARTNERS ACQUIRES TRIALON CORP.

Michigan-based firm provides engineering testing, staffing for automotive industry, military, and medical device makers

CLEVELAND, March 25, 2016 – Resilience Capital Partners, a Cleveland-based private equity firm focused on investing in and improving lower mid-market companies in a broad range of industries, has purchased Trialon Corp., a provider of outsourced testing for the automotive industry and the military.

Founded in 1982, Trialon provides test engineering and technical staffing to variety of companies, including some of the world’s largest auto parts makers. The company tests new technology, such as lane-departure and self-parking systems on automobiles, and subjects vehicles to heat, wind and vibration analysis, among other services. Trialon’s customers also include the military and companies in the medical device, aerospace, consumer product, pharmaceutical and telecommunications industries.

“Trialon is a diversified company serving customers around the world,” said Bassem Mansour, co-chief executive officer of Resilience. “Companies in a range of industries have come to rely on Trialon because of its strong track record. Working with the leadership of Trialon, Resilience believes it can help the company consolidate its market share in the automotive industry and continue to explore growth areas, including test engineering and staffing for aerospace and healthcare companies.”

Based in Burton, Michigan, Trialon serves customers in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Europe and Asia. Trialon has more than 400 employees, primarily white-collar and high-skilled manufacturing workers, in Troy and Auburn Hills, Michigan; Kokomo, Indiana; and Warren, Ohio.

The acquisition, completed in March 2016, was made through Resilience Fund IV. Terms were not disclosed.
